

STAGE FOUR • MINDSET, PRODUCTIVITY & HABITS

FIRSTS

ADAPTATION NOTES

Online vs. in-person format notes for every activity that changes shape

A Citrus Edition Facilitator Resource • Companion to the FIRSTS Manual

BY AYOMIDE AYENI

FIRSTS • Adaptation Notes

Stage Four • Mindset, Productivity & Habits

PURPOSE

Several of Stage Four's group adaptations involve genuine vulnerability — a guided visualization with eyes closed, a paired resilience debrief, a live confidence routine performed out loud. These activities carry over to video reasonably well, but they need more deliberate handling than a typical discussion activity.

This document covers every activity across Stage Four's Session Plan and Group Versions of Key Exercises documents that genuinely changes shape between formats.

Format Notes by Activity

Activity	In-Person	Online
Live Group Practice (FIRST E1)	Everyone stands together in the room and runs the routine simultaneously on a count of three.	Everyone turns cameras on, unmutes, and runs the routine together on a verbal count. Slightly more awkward on video, but works — acknowledge the awkwardness explicitly rather than pretending it isn't there.
Peer-Guided Debrief (FIRST E4)	Pairs face each other directly, ideally with some physical distance from other pairs for privacy.	Breakout rooms of 2. This one benefits from genuine privacy — confirm breakout rooms are truly private (not recorded, not joinable by the facilitator without notice) and say so explicitly before starting.
Accountability Partner live matching (FIRST E12)	Participants physically move around the room to find and lock in a partner.	Use breakout rooms with self-selection if the platform allows, or facilitator-assigned pairing via chat. Have pairs exchange contact info (email, phone) via private chat, not just verbally, since there's no paper to write it on.
Guided Group Visualization (FIRST E17)	Lights dimmed if possible, facilitator reads the prompt aloud while the room sits in shared silence.	Ask participants to turn cameras off during the silent visualization portion (removes self-consciousness about being watched with eyes closed), then back on for the writing and sharing portion.
Idea Speed-Round (FIRST F1)	Small clusters of 3–4 physically huddle for quick pitches.	Breakout rooms of 3–4, 60-second timer visible on screen. Consider a shared doc where each idea gets typed first, so quieter participants have a written record to reference during their pitch.
Opinion Roundtable (FIRST F5)	Full-group discussion, facilitator standing to physically moderate turn-taking.	Use “raise hand” for the discussion portion to prevent talking over each other, which is a bigger problem on video than in person for a genuinely lively debate.
Full-group share-outs / closing rounds	Genuine round-robin around the room.	Use “raise hand” or call names directly from a list rather than open-floor, which tends to stall on video.

GENERAL HYBRID GUIDANCE

For the guided visualization (E17), a hybrid room should let remote participants keep cameras off during the silent portion just as in-person participants might close their eyes — don't require visible engagement during genuinely internal, reflective moments.

For paired vulnerable exercises (E4's Resilience Drill especially), pair remote participants with other remote participants rather than mixing remote-to-in-person, since a video-to-in-room pairing tends to feel more exposed for the remote participant.