

STAGE FOURTEEN • PROJECT MANAGEMENT

FIRSTS

COMPLETION CRITERIA

What counts as done, and how it triggers the Stage Fourteen credential

A Citrus Edition Facilitator Resource • Companion to the FIRSTS Manual

BY AYOMIDE AYENI

FIRSTS • Completion Criteria & Credential Trigger

Stage Fourteen • Project Management

PURPOSE

This document defines exactly what “complete” means for Stage Fourteen, at both the individual FIRST level and the full-stage level, and how completion connects to the program's credentialing system. Because this stage's real value comes from applying its FIRSTS consistently to one real project rather than completing them as isolated exercises, the completion standard explicitly checks for that consistency, not just thirty individually-completed worksheets.

Per-FIRST Standard

STANDARD

A FIRST counts as complete when the corresponding Templates worksheet has a genuine, specific answer in every required field, grounded in a real project (not a purely hypothetical one), and for FIRSTS involving genuine action (R17's risk mitigation, R25's escalation, R28's closure confirmation), when that action has actually been taken or the confirmation genuinely obtained.

Stage-Level Completion Checklist

- All 30 Templates worksheets completed with genuine, specific answers, consistently applied to the same real project across all three sessions.
- Attendance or async completion confirmed for all 3 sessions.
- A complete set of planning artifacts for one real project: scope, requirements, deliverables, timeline, and risk register at minimum.
- A specific, named commitment to manage one real, upcoming project end-to-end, recorded at the FIRST R30 stage close.

Facilitator Sign-Off

The facilitator reviews each participant's completed Templates workbook, confirming the planning artifacts are genuinely consistent with one real project carried across the stage rather than disconnected hypothetical examples. Spot-check for genuine specificity, particularly in the risk register and lessons learned, where vague, generic answers are the most common shortfall.

Credential Trigger

HOW THE BADGE WORKS

Upon facilitator sign-off, the participant's record is marked "Stage Fourteen Complete" in the program tracker, which triggers the Stage Fourteen digital badge. As with every stage, badges accumulate visibly; the full-program certificate is issued only once all 16 stages are marked complete.