Stage Fourteen • Project Management

FOR FACILITATORS

Send the relevant section below 2-3 days before each session. This stage's pre-work centers on one thing above all else: arriving with a real project in mind, since the entire stage is built to be applied consistently to it.

Before Session 1: Project Planning Foundations

WHAT TO DO BEFORE THIS SESSION

- Identify one real project, current, upcoming, or recently completed, that you can reference and build on throughout all three sessions of this stage. School, work, or personal all work equally well.

WHY THIS MATTERS

This stage benefits enormously from applying every FIRST to one consistent, real project rather than a different hypothetical example each time. Arriving with something specific in mind saves real session time.

Before Session 2: Managing Execution

WHAT TO DO BEFORE THIS SESSION

- Bring your Session 1 planning documents or notes — this session builds directly on the project you defined last time.

WHY THIS MATTERS

Every exercise this session assumes you already have a scope, timeline, and risk register from Session 1 to work from.

Before Session 3: Modern Methodologies & Closing Out

WHAT TO DO BEFORE THIS SESSION

- No specific preparation required, though it's helpful to think about whether you've ever worked on a team using Agile, Scrum, or Kanban, even informally.
- Come ready to reflect on your real project's current state — this session includes formally closing it out.

WHY THIS MATTERS

This session shifts from your own project plan toward broader methodologies and formal closure practices, so a general readiness to reflect matters more than specific materials.
