PURPOSE

Stage Twelve's activities lean on live interaction — role-play, feedback delivery, anonymous input — more than most stages, which makes format genuinely consequential here.

This document covers every activity across Stage Twelve's Session Plan and Group Versions of Key Exercises documents that genuinely changes shape between formats.

Format Notes by Activity

Activity	In-Person	Online
Leader vs. Boss / small-group sharing (icebreakers)	Small clusters of chairs, easy face-to-face conversation.	Breakout rooms of 2-3. Post the prompt in chat before sending people in so no time is lost re-explaining once inside the room.
Peer Mirror (FIRST P2, from Group Versions doc)	Pairs face each other directly; easier to read genuine reactions.	Breakout rooms of 2. Encourage cameras on for this one specifically — tone and honesty are easier to gauge and give when both people can see each other.
Silent Restate (FIRST P6)	Physical index cards flipped simultaneously.	Use a shared poll or form that reveals answers only once everyone submits, not a chat message visible as it's typed.
Live Coaching Round (FIRST P15)	Pairs face each other; a visible timer helps pace the discipline of questions-only.	Breakout rooms of 2. Post the “questions only, no advice” rule directly in the breakout instructions since there's no facilitator physically visible to enforce it.
Feedback Sandwich Stress-Test (FIRST P16)	Pairs deliver feedback aloud face-to-face.	Works naturally well on video since tone is already the focus of the call. Breakout rooms of 2.
Mediator Fishbowl (FIRST P18)	Volunteers sit visibly in the center; observers surround them.	Volunteers turn on cameras and unmute; use the “spotlight” feature so their video tiles are prominent for observers. Everyone else stays muted, cameras optional.
Pitch Relay (FIRST P23)	Small groups physically rotate who's listening.	Breakout rooms of 3-4, with participants taking turns sharing their screen if the pitch includes any visual material.
Anonymous Round (FIRST P27)	Physical index cards collected and shuffled before reading aloud.	Use an anonymous form (not a named chat message) so responses are genuinely unattributable when shared back with the group.
Full-group share-outs / closing rounds	Genuine round-robin around the room.	Use “raise hand” or call names directly from a list rather than open-floor, which tends to stall on video.

GENERAL HYBRID GUIDANCE

For the Mediator Fishbowl and any other role-play activity, a hybrid format should keep volunteers together in the same location or medium (all in-person, or all on camera) rather than mixing — a fishbowl with one volunteer physically present and one on a screen creates a genuinely uneven dynamic for both the volunteers and the observers.

For anonymous feedback activities, an online form is often more genuinely anonymous than physical index cards passed around a room, where handwriting or timing can sometimes reveal authorship. Consider using a digital anonymous form even for in-person sessions if genuine anonymity matters most.
