PURPOSE

Stage Sixteen's ethics-focused small-group activities (Sections 4-5) rely on genuine anonymity and careful sequencing to work well — a poorly adapted online version can accidentally expose individual answers that were meant to stay private within a small group. This document covers every activity across Stage Sixteen's Session Plan and Group Versions of Key Exercises documents that genuinely changes shape between formats.

Format Notes by Activity

Activity	In-Person	Online
Norm Detective Panel (T3, from Group Versions doc)	Small clusters of chairs, genuine face-to-face comparison of norm stories.	Breakout rooms of 3-4. Post the prompt in chat before sending people in so no time is lost re-explaining.
Boundary Script Swap (T12)	Pairs turn to face each other directly for the role-play reaction.	Breakout rooms of 2. Encourage participants to actually say the boundary language out loud rather than just describing it, since tone is harder to read on video.
Rehearsal Pairs (T16, from Group Versions doc)	Pairs face each other; easier to read genuine reactions.	Breakout rooms of 2. Since tone is harder to read on video, encourage exaggerating vocal delivery slightly so the “stand-in” reaction reads clearly.
Simultaneous Reveal (T22)	Physical index cards flipped at the same moment.	Use a shared poll or form that reveals answers only once everyone has submitted, not a chat message visible as it's typed.
Stated vs. Observed Sort (T23)	Physical shared sheet or whiteboard per small group.	A shared collaborative doc (one per breakout room) works well; assign one person per group as the scribe.
Silent Case Sort (T27)	Physical index cards or a printed handout of scenarios.	Share scenarios via chat or a shared doc; use anonymous poll features if available so individual answers stay private within the small group.
Competing Values Debate (T35)	Physically split the room into two halves for the assigned-position debate.	Assign breakout rooms by position rather than splitting the main room; bring everyone back to the main room for the final unassigned discussion.
Full-group share-outs / closing rounds (all sessions)	Genuine round-robin around the room.	Use “raise hand” or call names directly from a list rather than open-floor, which tends to stall on video.

GENERAL HYBRID GUIDANCE

For any activity using anonymous or simultaneous-reveal formats (T22, T27), never mix in-person and remote participants in the same small group — in-person participants writing on physical cards and remote participants typing in a shared doc creates a genuine, uneven anonymity gap between the two.

For the Competing Values Debate (T35), assign entire breakout rooms to one position rather than splitting an in-person/remote mixed group, since coordinating a shared argument across formats is genuinely harder than within one.
